The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved silicone breast implants late Friday, November 15th, for women 22 years and older and those undergoing breast reconstructions. The Los Angeles Times interviewed Dr. Buchanan for his opinion on the FDA's approval and its impact on silicone breast implant sales.

"David Buchanan, who has been practicing plastic surgery in Santa Barbara for two decades, said his office was receiving as many as a dozen calls a day from patients asking about the new silicone implants. He said several of his patients had told him this week that they would like silicone implants as long as he believed they were safe.

'I'm telling them all the same thing,' he said. 'I've been doing this a long time and I'm convinced they're not only a good choice, they're a safe choice.'
